There is an exhibition in Mr. John M. Taylor's jewelry store in this city. One of the best pieces of pen drawing we have ever seen. To us it appears to be equal to the finest engraving, and we would advise all who have not seen it to call and make a careful study of its faultless merit and beauty. The picture, 22x23 inches and mounted in an elegant frame, is the work of Mr. George E. Brown, whose reputation as a pen artist of rare excellence is by no means local. The subjects are landscapes, portraits, &c., and the whole was executed with a steel pen. Mr. Brown worked at his picture for three years.

While in Nashville last week it was our pleasure to visit the homes of our old friends and former townsmen, Messrs. J. C. Brown and J. M. Taylor. These gentlemen are engaged in the furniture business, and have two large stores in the city. They are doing a large and successful business, and are popular citizens of their adopted home. Mr. Scudder has accumulated a competency, and owns one of the most elegant homes in the city. He has an interesting family of five daughters. The Messrs. Sharpe occupy a handsome home together, and each have one child. We know their many old friends in Anderson will be delighted to hear of their success.

The Hartsville Messenger of last week says: "We are glad to hear that the principal of the Welsh Neck High School, next session, will be a native of Anderson County in this State. He attended Furman University at Greenville, S. C., and was graduated in 1891. Since that time he has been engaged in teaching, first at Westminster in Oconee County and for the past two years at Bamberg, where he has had a remarkably flourishing school. The people of Bamberg are very anxious to keep him and his family in the position of the Welsh Neck High School, an earnest effort has been made to have him released so that they might retain his services. It is definitely settled that he is to come here. The people of this section of the State will give him a hearty welcome and will stand by him in his efforts to promote the cause of higher education."

Last Wednesday evening about 7 o'clock a severe storm, accompanied by a heavy rain and a little hail, passed over the city. No great damage was done. Shortly after the storm Rev. S. H. Harper was walking down McBride street, near the home of Mr. W. A. Chapman, when he struck a wire which had fallen across the sidewalk. He stooped down and caught the wire, when he was severely shocked and could not extricate himself. His screams attracted the attention of Mr. Long, the electrician, who was near by working on the wires, and Mr. C. S. Sullivan, who ran to his assistance. Mr. Harper was severely shocked and painfully burned on the left hand. On Friday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, another storm visited the city and did considerable damage. There was a heavy downpour of rain, accompanied by lightning and thunder and a severe wind. The wind was from the northwest, and the storm lasted about twenty minutes. The damage was worst in the northern section of the city. Mr. R. A. Mayfield's residence was struck by lightning, and the chimneys and roof were badly torn. Other chimneys in various sections were struck and badly damaged, and many trees and fences were leveled to the ground. On the Court House Square a large plate glass window in C. F. Jones & Co.'s store was blown out. The skylight in D. C. Brown & Bro.'s was wrecked and the store flooded with water, and R. S. Hill's store had a similar experience. In the southern portion of the city Jerry Singleton, a negro, had a skull fractured by lightning. The storm seems to have been confined to the city, as no damage is reported from the country. The residents of the city were badly frightened for the time being.

A Card.

Mr. Editor: Please give me space in your columns to return my thanks to the dear friends who came to my assistance and gave me comforting words of sympathy in my recent affliction in the accidental death of my devoted wife. Words are inadequate for me to express my appreciation of the kind words and God bless each and every one of them.

A few nights preceding the accident my wife dreamed that the horse ran away with her and threw her in a big hole. It made an impression upon her, and she talked frequently of dying, saying she was ready to go at any time. She was a member of Flat Rock Baptist Church and a faithful christian.

My Dear Sir: The remembrance of our former trip to "Tallulah" is a constant pleasure to me.
